REPORT
INDEX MEDICAL COLLEGE
ENVIRONMENTDAY

World Environment Day is celebrated annually on June 5th, after it was established at the Stockholm Conference on the Human Environment in 1972.

This day was celebration as name of SYMPOSIUM on impact of Alarming Global Warming On Health And Existence Of Human Being.

The worrying reality is that our Region records the highest number of deaths from climate change annually amongst all WHO regions. Climate change and biodiversity loss already pose major threats to health, the regional economy and livelihoods across our Region.

This World Environment Day, I urge our public health community to join the efforts towards land restoration, halting desertification and building drought resilience.

Let us not forget that this is our land, and our future.
